Death in jail adds to allegations of brutality

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Local residents on Saturday rallied under allegations of "police brutality" stemming from a June 14 arrest by police that left two adult brothers injured, one seriously. But the rally also included questions about the death in jail last week of another West Sacramento man, who had forcibly arrested on August 21.

The first incident occurred on Riverbank Road, near Golden State Middle School. According to police, two patrol cars arrived to contact Ernesto and Fermin Galvin as they were walking down the levee. Ernesto, according to police, appeared to be under the influence of alcohol or drugs and refused to comply with police demands that he keep his hands in the air. At one point, an officer tried to remove Ernesto's hands from his pocket.

Officers say Galvin struck at them. In an ensuing arrest, both stun-guns and police batons were used on Ernesto Galvin, who was critically injured. Fermin Galvin was less seriously injured.

Local activists say the pair did not understand what he was told to do, and allege brutal police treatment. The more seriously injured of the two men is still recovering from his wounds. Attempts to reach the protest's organizers yesterday for comment were not immediately successful.

Last week, though, brought the death in jail of the son of one of West Sacramento's better-known citizens.

David Helmold, 37, was the son of Helena Helmold, who runs a local center that helps people with drug problems and also heads up the popular charity "West Sacramento Christmas Basket Project."

David Helmold was arrested on Aug. 21, for charges involving an altercation with his girlfriend a day or two prior. A police dog helped take him into custody from his Poplar Avenue home. Helmold was charged with making criminal threats, battery, parole violations and resisting arrest.

Helmold was evaluated and cleared by the Woodland Memorial Hospital and by the jail's medical staff. But at about 2:30 a.m., correctional officers noticed him "in distress," apparently having a seizure, and he was taken for medical treatment. At about 3:18 a.m., after having been taken to Woodland Memorial Hospital, he was pronounced dead.

His mother, Helena Helmold, said she is left with a number of questions about what happened to her son – both in the hands of police, and in the hands of the Yolo County Jail.

"The manner in which he was arrested brings a lot of questions," she said. "They used a dog to arrest him in his own house. I've seen the house. There was nothing out of order. There was no place for him to hide."

And Helmold said she believes that jail staff knew her son was a seizure patient (ever since "he was hit by a drunk driver in 1984") but had him in restraints, unaware he was having a seizure until too late.

"They thought he was being combative, when he was having a seizure," said Helmold.

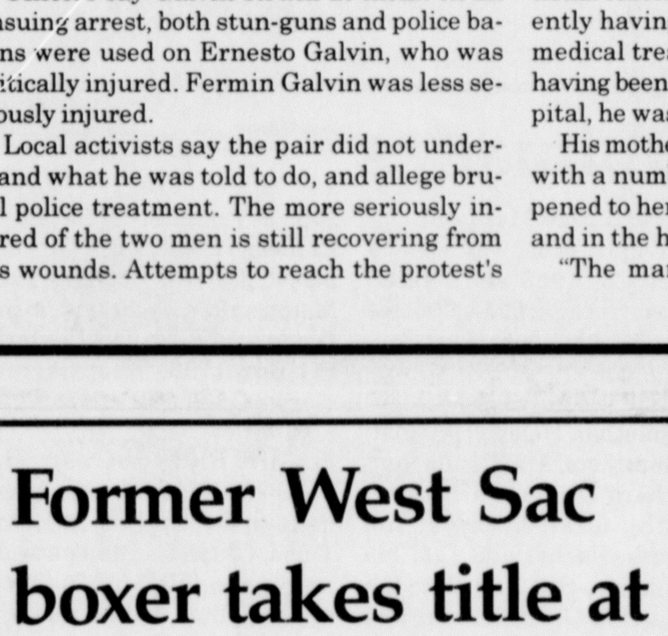
Her son had been in trouble before, but never fought police or ran from them, she added.

"David wasn't an angel, but he wasn't a bad person," she said. "He was always trying to rescue some people, always trying to help people. He had a girlfriend he really loved. We got this house so David would have a place to live. He was going to get a car. He was not able to work. He finally got his disability."

Her son's home on Poplar Avenue has attracted a collection of flowers and memorial items from well-wishers.

County officials say they are awaiting the result of toxicology results before determining a cause of death.

Former West Sac boxer takes title at state fair bout——



Former West Sacramentan Hector Eric Martinez won the 'heavyweight division' title in an inaugural boxing event held at the California State Fair this weekend.

'El Rey' picks up a win in first fight as a professional

West Sacramento native Hector Eric Martinez defeated Rusty Moscrip of Los Angeles to claim the inaugural California State Fair Heavyweight division title held at Cal Expo on August 28.

Martinez won the four-round match when Moscrip could not begin the second-round after the ring doctor determined he was to badly beaten to continue the fight. As a pro, Martinez is now 1-0 with one TKO.

The former West Sacramentan stands 6' 3", weighs 240 pounds and has been boxing for 15 years. He ended his amateur career as the Golden Gloves State Champion. The crowd of 2,000 spectators saw Martinez hit Moscrop with three-punch combinations and show his great boxing skills.

What's next for Hector Martinez, who goes by the name of "El Rey," meaning "The King?" According to manager/trainer Sonny Guerro, they'll see who is available – but they do plan to fight again soon.

West Sacramento gas station goes solar

The owners of a West Sacramento "Flyers" service station and convenience store were handed a $131,082 rebate check from PG&E on August 17 at the store on the 1400-block of West Capitol Avenue. The facility is equipped with an array of solar panels capable of generating up to 55,770 kilowatts of electricity annually – enough to power eight average homes, said PG&E.

The service station is one of 14 solar projects installed by station owner Nella Oil. The company plans nine more such solar projects.

PG&E reports that Nella Oil has already received nearly $2.5 million in rebate money – part of $84 million in solar power incentives handed out by PG&E since 2002.

David Dwelle, co-owner of Nella Oil, received the check from a PG&E representative.

New deputy police chief on board at HQ

West Sacramento Police Chief Dan Drummond has hired Henry Serrano to be the new Deputy Police Chief, effective Sept. 6.

Serrano has 30 years of law enforcement experience, including service as Chief Deputy for the Sacramento County Sheriff's Department and service as chief of police for Citrus Heights.

"During his career, Henry Serrano has demonstrated skill in community policing and building strong neighborhood ties," said Chief Drummond in a press release. "He also understands the importance of staff working together to accomplish goals and objectives."

Serrano retired in 2004 from the Sacramento County Sheriff's Department, going to work for the Sacramento Regional Office of Homeland Security.

"My 30 years of police experience have taught me that in making progress, the most important resource is good people," said Serrano. "I'm confident that resource is here at the West Sacramento Police Department."

Mosquito spraying —

When will West Sacramento mosquitoes be sprayed as part of the regional war against West Nile Virus?

So far, spraying by truck and from airplanes has been done to combat adult mosquitoes, which carry the disease. But such spraying as not yet occurred in West Sacramento.

A spokesperson for the Sacramento-Yolo Mosquito & Vector Control District said Monday she didn't know if – or when – local spraying of pesticides might begin.

"We're currently reevaluating," said Jennifer Benito, the district's public information officer. "I won't know anything additional until later this week."

There have been several confirmed cases of West Nile Virus in the region, but there has also been some public concern about alleged health hazards from the pesticide program.

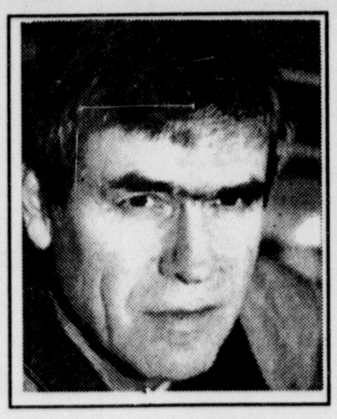
We're not as important as we think we are

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

Every August or September I try to slip out of town for three or four days to kinda recharge the batteries and remind myself that I live in a really great country to just look at and visually enjoy. Usually I end up on one of those relatively quiet and peaceful Southern California beaches just north of San Diego where I can plop myself down on the warm sand and put things into their proper perspective. I simply gaze out at the incoming and outgoing waves for a few hours and remind myself that those very same waves will still be coming and going long after me and all my puny little problems are long gone and forgotten about, and that always seems to do the trick. I think we all have a tendency to think we are much more important in the overall scheme of things than we actually are and there's somehow something quite comforting in reminding myself every once in awhile that no matter who we are, when it's our time to leave this earth, the world won't skip a single beat.

Anyway, this year I decided it was finally time for me to actually see the Grand Canyon, so my little trip was planned around that goal. First, though, I had to do my yearly "sit on the sand" so I drove down to Laguna Beach, leisurely accomplished that, and then headed out early the next morning for Las Vegas. My "make it up as you go" plan called for me to spend the night there and since all the hotels on the strip looked pretty much the same to me (gaudy), I strolled around in the heat (106) and crowds (thousands of vacationers) for most of the afternoon before finally making a decision on where to bed down.

Since I am now going to say a couple of negative things about where I stayed, I think it is probably best that I don't name the hotel/casino, but I will mention that it kinda looks like a giant black pyramid. Actually, I guess my evening wouldn't have been all that bad if it had taken me less than an hour to get to my room on the 17th floor and if the new coded elevator system they had apparently just installed had worked. To get the darn thing to go up or down you not only had to push the button which identified the floor you wanted, but you also had to insert your room key in another slot before it would start moving. Unfortunately (as I learned later), I was one of the lucky ones with a room key that the elevators didn't particularly like (they were working out the kinks in the system and they appreciated my patience).

Not only was I stranded inside a locked elevator all by myself twice, the second time the gods decided to really play around with me by turning out the lights, too. So there I was, having always thought I would be so cool, calm and collected in such a situation, not able to see my hand in front of my face, much less locate a button that might read, "Push for help if beginning to panic". So, after a few minutes of what I would consider being pretty cool, calm and collected, the air supply seemed to be rapidly disappearing and I decided to go to Plan B, which consisted of pounding on the inside of the elevator door and screaming such things as, "Get me the hell out of this death trap!" Thankfully, it wasn't long before the lights went back on and the door mercifully opened and I lived to fight another day.

The next morning, after quickly losing a hundred dollars or so on failed blackjack hands and slot machines and purchasing a $4 banana for breakfast, I began my day-trip to the Grand Canyon, by way of Hoover Dam, which I had always wanted to see, having watched some very interesting television programs in the past about its construction and the fact that it is the principle source of flood control, irrigation and electrical power for most of the American Southwest.

The narrow winding road which takes you down and over the dam is a visual delight in itself, with its beautiful rocky canyon walls and peaceful vistas. I also got a great view of the dam's massive intake towers because the water level is so far down this year due to the lengthy drought that part of the country has been experiencing since around 1999.

Approximately four hours of hard driving later, I suddenly found myself on the South Rim of the Grand Canyon. As much as I would like to describe that incredible moment for you, words will simply not do it justice. I'll just say that if you haven't had a deeply religious experience in ages, you need to get yourself to the Grand Canyon! Anyway, there I was, silly me, having always somehow thought that if I ever just got myself to the Grand Canyon, all I would have to do is stroll up to the edge of it, look out, and see the whole thing. I quickly learned, however, that not only is the Grand Canyon five to six thousand feet deep in many places, it is also 277 miles long, and to view it properly you need to take at least three days or so to journey from the South Rim to the North Rim because the ancient rocks that are exposed for all to see differ from place to place, some forming slopes, some cliffs, and no one view is the same. Plus I was told that the minerals inside the rocks create different shades of reds and yellows and greens that change not only with the location but also with the time of the day.

But since my time was limited, I decided some of it should be devoted to having myself another good "put things into perspective sit". And as I sat there, looking out over the majestic South Rim, only one thought was really necessary -- that for 12 million years, the mighty Colorado River has been relentlessly carving out the Grand Canyon. And there I was -- little old me -- viewing a 12 million year project of Mother Nature. Talk about perspective!

And just before I forced myself to leave the Grand Canyon, one final thought popped into my head -- I just hope that they never, ever find a way to install elevators to get you down to the bottom!

SPORTS INSIDER

By Richard Novoa

The College and NFL season is just around the corner as teams prepare to cut players to reach their roster limits. In the Pros the teams must cut to 65 players on Tuesday and then after their last preseason game on Thursday night trim down again to 53 players. The Turk will be a visiting players during the next two weeks bearing the bad news. Every team as a person referred to as the Turk. If the Turk stops by your locker after practice it means go to the coaches office and bring your playbook!

The Sports News magazine latest edition ranked the 31 NFL stadiums and our two local stadiums look like they need renovations. Oakland's McAfee Coliseum finished 29th just of ahead of the 49ers Monster Park, who were edged out by Atlanta Falcons stadium for last place and the trophy for the worst place to play pro football.

ESPN did a great job bringing the joy of watching kids play baseball with their in depth coverage of the Little League World Series. This event is truly a world event with kids competing in good old fashion baseball. Just think a few of these young men will turn out to be our future college and Major League players.

Teams qualified to play this tournament from countries from around the world. Kids represented countries like Japan, Holland, Venezuela, Mexico, and Curacao. They all traveled to Williamsport, Penn. to compete with the best U. S. teams from regional tournaments. This year's champion was a group of kids from West Oahu, Hawaii. Hawaii scored 3 times in the bottom of the sixth inning against the defending champion team from Curacao to claim the 2005 World Series for the United States.

NFL Updates

The Niners won the second time this young season with a overtime win against the Titans last Friday while the Raiders second unit struggled in their loss to the Cardinals. The 49ers $60 million dollar man finally showed some worth in directing the overtime drive to win the game. Smith will back up starting QB Tim Rattey in the season home opener on 9/11 against the Rams. The Niners will close out the preseason in San Diego on Thursday.

The Raiders will also close out the preseason on Thursday night at home against the New Orleans Saints. The Oakland Raiders have the pleasure of opening the NFL season on National TV next Thursday in New England.

Major League Playoffs

Let's talk about the major league playoffs with the A's and Giants heading in different directions. The A's put together a successful road trip to claim first place in the West for the first time since August 11th. The Angels on the other hand went on a losing streak against Tampa Bay but on right in the wild card race with the Yankees, Twins, and the Cleveland Indians. Watch out for the young streaking Indians who have the best bullpen in the majors.

Local 'Junior Giants' visit the real thing

West Sacramento's "Junior Giants" youth baseball team joined other "Junior Giants" teams from the region to celebrate their sport at a major league Giants game at SBC Park on Saturday.

The different squads participated in a parade before the game before the San Francisco Giants took on the New York Mets. The major league squad's community fund sponsors the youth teams. The Bank of America also participates, as do volunteer coaches from the Police Activities League, parks departments and various communities.

leaders will face off in a three game series starting on Tuesday in Disneyland. This series is crucial for A's, who will return to Oakland for a weekend series against the desperate playoff seeking Yankees.

In the National League the Giants and Cubs finally threw in the towel after falling back in the race for the only wild card playoff spot. The Phillies, Mets, Marlins and Nationals are contending for the right to play St. Louis and Atlanta. The Giants are cleaning house by trading Michael Tucker to Phillies and by releasing another old workhorse pitcher in Jason Christianson. They finally brought up rookie pitcher Matt Cain from Fresno where his record stood at 10-5 with an ERA of 4.39 but he's struck out 176 batters in 145 innings.

It' time to let the kids from Fresno play and show their stuff. Todd Linden, who was terrorizing the PCL with his home run power, is finally going to play in right field. This young man has great power and is the future outfielder the Giants were always trading for. The Giants have signed free agents, swapped or sold the farm for at less six right outfielders in the past three years while Todd was clobbering PCL pitching. Some time the answer is right in front of you!

The Western Division is a joke with the Padres currently winning the division with (64-65) record. San Diego record wouldn't even get them in line for the wild card spot.

World Cup Soccer

The United States and Mexico will meet again on Saturday, September 3rd (7:30 p.m. Telemundo) in Columbus, Ohio with the winner clinching a berth in 2006 Cup in Germany. The United States can clinch a spot among the 32 national teams in next year's World Cup in Germany with one more win in its three remaining qualifying matches. Mexico (5-0-1) leads the final round of the North and Central American and Caribbean region with 16 points, one more than the United States (5-1-0). Guatemala and Costa Rica (both 2-3-1) are at seven points, following by Trinidad and Tobago (1-4-1) with four and Panama (0-4-2) with two.

The U.S. expects to be at full strength on the attack with the return of DaMarcus Beasley and Eddie Johnson. Mexico will also field their top players for this top spot in the tournament.

Enjoy your day – See ya next week!

He was booked. The suspect told an officer that when he was released, he would wear all red (a gang color) and carry a pistol.

Aug. 24, 5:50 p.m.
A 52-year old male transient was arrested for illegally camping near the approach to the Tower Bridge and a West Sacramento monastery.

Aug. 24, 10:07 p.m.
On the 2000-block of West Capitol, and officer contacted a 29-year old West Sacramento man who was driving a confirmed stolen vehicle that also had a stolen license plate on it. The man had an arrest warrant as well, and was booked.

Aug. 25, 5:11 a.m.
A car was reported to have been stolen from Beardsley Drive during the night.

Aug. 25, 2:17 p.m.
An officer pulled over a car near Southport Parkway and Bridgeway Lakes Dr. for a vehicle code violation. The 24-year old Manteca man driving the car was unlicensed, and was detained. During a search of the vehicle before it was towed, a baggie with a small amount of methamphetamine was found under the driver's seat. The driver initially gave a false name to the officer, but admitted to a correct name later. He was arrested.

Aug. 25, 2:36 p.m.
A caller reported that a female on a bicycle had just been hit by a car near an Anna Street school. The victim was reported to be "up and walking."

Aug. 25, 3:59 p.m.
A caller reported bringing a defiant juvenile to the West Sacramento police parking lot. On the ride over, the youth attempted to hit the adult, and kicked and broke out a vehicle window. The youth was arrested for battery.

Aug. 25, 4:13 p.m.
A caller at a Rice Avenue business reported that an unknown vehicle had earlier struck a parked pickup truck, pushing it 30 feet during the collision. The hit-and-run occurred sometime during the prior two hours.

Aug. 25, 10:06 p.m.
A South River Road bus yard reported that a man had been sleeping in a bus, and had been told to leave, but continued to come back. The man said he was "Howard Hughes II." The caller said the man couldn't be found, but was probably still in the yard, and requested police help in finding and removing him.

Aug. 25, 11:30 p.m.
The prior night, an officer contacted a 35-year old man "loitering in a high crime/drug area" near Jefferson and West Capitol. The man was a parolee, and argued with an officer who told him that he couldn't leave Sacramento County without a pass. On Aug. 25, the officer found the same parolee in a "high crime/drug area" at the 600-block of West Capitol. He again argued with the officer when told he couldn't be in West Sacramento without a pass. The parolee was taken into custody after becoming belligerent.

Aug. 26, 1:28 p.m.
An officer contacted a 56-year old man on railroad property near Sacramento Avenue and 8th Street, an area frequented by heroin addicts. The man was on parole for heroin-related charges, and admitted to injecting heroin between the base of his fingers during the last eight hours. A parole agent placed a "hold" on the parolee, who was then taken into custody.

Aug. 26, 4:16 p.m.
An officer pulled over a 23-year old West Sacramento man driving with expired registration tags near 3rd and F streets. The man had a Sacramento arrest warrant and was on searchable probation. A baggie with 0.5 grams of methamphetamine was found in the man's front pants pocket, and he was booked.

Aug. 28, 1:09 p.m.
A 51-year old male driver was stopped by police near 2nd and E streets because his brake lights didn't work. The man was on parole or probation, and a search turned up a pill bottle with "numerous prescription drugs." The man was arrested.

Aug. 28, 5:45 p.m.
Police contacted a 39-year old male transient loitering near 3rd and D streets. The man was on searchable probation. An officer "pat-searched" the subject, finding a knife with handgrips in the subject's pocket. He was also an alleged gang member (thus subject to the rules of a special anti-gang injunction), and was arrested.

Geivett: more professional than WUSD

I read with interest your story about Yolo High School last week. It is refreshing to note the positive and professional approach of Interim Principal Mort Geivett regarding the need for the school district to work towards receiving accreditation for that school. This approach is particularly admirable when one considers the apparent negative and unprofessional actions taken by the administration and board of education in removing him from River City High School and placing him at Yolo High School in what appears to be a precipitous action taken very shortly before the beginning of the new school year. One wonders how River City faculty and students are faring without said professionalism.

Thanks for candlelight vigil story

Thank you for publishing the story about the candlelight vigil for Cindy Sheehan that took place August 17th here in West Sacramento. I've had the pleasure to meet Cindy and hear her speak. I was amazed by her wisdom and saddened by the pain caused her by the loss of her son, Casey. That's when I decided to get involved in supporting her cause. I am also a mother and an American and her fight is my fight, her pain is my pain.

I attended the West Sacramento vigil along with a group of concerned and caring people who want to make a difference in this country. We will not give up until the blood shed by our troops (whom we support whole heatedly) and innocent Iraqi civilians comes to an end. We don't want to see another parent have to bury their child. We want them to have a future of peace.

School district needs oversight

If you've ever felt like you were banging your head on a brick wall, you know what it's like to attend the local school board meetings. Meeting after meeting, many of us from the community and district staff, stand before the board expressing our concerns and bringing forth different issues or ideas which continually fall on deaf ears. One such issue that should concern us all is this district's continuous violations of by-laws and the Brown Act. Whether it is a committee, club, organization or board, there are specific laws to be followed to protect the interest of our community. I find it disturbing that our top administrators are leading different groups into these violations without any consequences or accountability.

Another issue that needs serious attention is the $30 million over budget on the new high school (the total projection of the project is $152 million). One point brought up at a recent meeting was the fact that there are only five more classrooms than what are currently at RCHS in the schematic design of the new high school. Considering RCHS currently has almost 1800 students and is bursting at the seams, how can we build a new school that is to house up to 2400 students with only five additional classrooms?

The excuse that we can't build the new high school for what we once thought we could is not valid, especially since a local community just opened their new high school for $82 million (construction and land, while ours is projected to be $109 million, just for construction). A week ago Rocklin opened a beautiful new high school with a $52 million bond. It took only 18 months to build and while the auditorium is still under construction, it seats 400 with a fly loft. They have two gyms, a stadium that seats 4000 with a rubberized track and synthetic turf, as well as a competition swimming pool. They were able to put all new, state-of-the-art technology and new computers in this school.

One of our voiced concerns has been how will we be able to staff the current design, let alone put needed technology and books in each SLC? In Rocklin, they have various vocational themes; broadcasting, photography, art, just to name a few. All of this was done without outside partnerships or funding. Why can't we build something more reasonable and affordable? We need to learn from their success and take heed of an obstacle they had to overcome. Their construction bid ended up being 30%-40% higher than their projected budget. Considering our project is already $30 million over what we can afford, that type of bid would be devastating to our new high school and could stop the project all together. Are we willing to take that chance? Why can't the board come together with the community, staff, and students to build something within our financial budget? It can be done. The Rocklin school was built to house 1800-2000 students. Even with 400 extra students and the possible price increase on construction, we could build something more reasonable. One problem is that DLR has walked away with a 6% [commission on the project] and has no incentive to lower the cost of design because the more it costs, the more they make.

I continue to urge this community to come and see for yourself what is going on in this school district. The people in charge need to know how we feel and if enough people speak out, maybe they will finally listen!

In support of Sheehan

I have met Cindy Sheehan and I have heard her speak at Sacramento For Democracy meetings. I have read her letters and witnessed her warmth and pain. When she speaks to you she looks straight into your eyes. She gives a hug that I'm convinced only a mother could give. She's no one's puppet or shill or co-conspirator. She is not anti-American or anti-troops or anti-democracy. She is an American woman, a mother who was happy in her apolitical life until her son, Casey, was killed in Iraq, and she later learned of the lies presented to the American public as "indisputable facts" to justify an invasion of another country that was no threat to America, possessed no WMD's, and had absolutely nothing to do with 9/11. As the death toll of troops and Iraqi citizens mounted, and knowing that the Bush administration had lied to the American people, to her, and to Casey, she decided she could no longer remain silent.

I have never lost a child. I don't know the extent of that pain. But I have seen the pain in Cindy's eyes and it is haunting. I ask every parent, sibling and spouse to look into their own hearts and ask themselves how they would react if a loved one had died for a lie? The answer may surprise them.

Bon voyage, Barry

At the August 11th school board meeting I addressed the board regarding events on opening day at River City High School. Within my comments I stated that "My daughter waited in line 20 minutes to order food and when she finally received her overpriced, subpar selection she had five minutes left to eat it while hurrying to her next class". At the August 25th board meeting I again addressed the board and revisited ongoing situations at River City and stated that "Students are still burning almost their entire lunch period standing in line". At the end of the meeting board member Kalar, with a smirk on his face, remarked that "I was at River City and everybody got their lunch, so contrary to what we've been hearing, everybody was eating".

First of all, manning a booth in the quad hardly qualifies Mr. Kalar to state that every student got lunch, unless of course he personally served those 1,800 or so students during those two 30 minute lunch periods. Secondly, perhaps the lines were not as bad on that particular day due to the large amount of students who were at the booths signing up for clubs/sports coupled with the fact that many students are now bringing their lunch in both the early and late period. Third, if Mr. Kalar had actually listened to my words then he would have gotten them correct. My remarks addressed the amount of time students are tied up in line not whether they were actually getting lunch/eating.

I stand behind my remarks. Many parents are also commenting that their children are experiencing the same problem. Mr. Kalar's comments intimate that I was not telling the truth. How comical -- the pot calling the kettle black. Lastly, I would suggest to Mr. Kalar that if in the future he is going to publicly attempt to take a swipe at a community member in his comments at the end of the meeting, then he should do his homework. A community member whom I am not acquainted with addressed the board that particular evening and likened it to "talking to a brick wall" -- case in point. There was one bright spot during the meeting, however -- it came when Mr. Kalar announced that he would be going to India.

Do we need mandatory K-12?

It's past due that our public school system be changed from the mandatory K-12 to mandatory K-10 with grades 11 and 12 being optional, since too many teens have shown over the decades that they resent having to stay in school once they obtain their driver's license, usually at age 16.

I recall when I was in high school, math classes were the only ones of interest to me, so I went through the motions and graduated on time, but no way was I job-ready. I was too shy to succeed in interviews, could not write an effective letter, was below-par preparing job applications, and did not possess enough market-desired skills.

So a main goal should be to have students much more job-ready in those areas (including computer literacy) by the completion of

The Plot Against Social Security: How the Bush Plan Is Endangering Our Financial Future
by Michael A. Hiltzik
(HarperCollins, $24.95)
Reviewed by Larry Cox

Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist Michael A. Hiltzik is convinced that President Bush is misleading the American people about his plan to privatize Social Security, and he builds an impressive case against the president's agenda in his new book, "The Plot Against Social Security."

Hiltzik says Americans need to be reassured that Social Security is not facing bankruptcy — not now, not at any time in the next 75 years, even under the most pessimistic economic forecasts. He adds that when Bush says the system is running out of money, he simply is not telling the truth.

The author debunks other myths circulated by the Bush administration. For example, the trust fund is not just an illusion, as Bush has publicly claimed. It has a surplus of more than $1.5 trillion, and although the federal government has borrowed against those funds, the loans are backed by the full faith and credit of the U.S. government in the form of treasury bonds.

Hiltzik also makes a convincing argument that Social Security will not become the biggest drain on the federal budget in coming decades, nor go broke because there are fewer workers per beneficiary, nor somehow cheat African-Americans of their fair share.

He also exposes the Bush administration's "public forums" for what they really are, staged events in which members of the administration often pose as rank-and-file Americans.

The bottom line, Hiltzik says, is that privatizing Social Security would expose millions of beneficiaries to exactly the kind of market risks that the program's founders were determined to avoid.

Hiltzik concludes that as the battle over Social Security intensifies, the public must take the time and find the courage to subject the torrents of misstatements to a truth test.

• On Sept. 9, 1850, California becomes the 31st state in the union after Mexican diplomats cede the territory. They might have had regrets had they known that gold had been discovered at Sutter's Mill in Coloma, Calif., nine days prior to signing.

• On Sept. 11, 1921, San Francisco police arrest actor and director Fatty Arbuckle on suspicion of manslaughter. Starlet Virginia Rappe had died of a ruptured bladder several days after an alleged sexual assault by the 350-pound Arbuckle. After two hung juries, Arbuckle was acquitted in 1922, but his films were banned.

• On Sept. 7, 1936, rock pioneer Buddy Holly is born in Lubbock, Texas. Holly popularized the standard rock band format of two guitars, a bass and drums. His blockbuster hits included "Peggy Sue," "Oh, Boy!" and "Maybe Baby."

• On Sept. 5, 1957, Jack Kerouac's "On the Road," one of the first novels of the Beat movement, is published. Kerouac wrote in fits of inspiration, fueled by amphetamine binges and lack of sleep. The entire book was written on a 120-foot scroll of paper and took only 20 days.

• On Sept. 8, 1960, Aguri Suzuki, one of Japan's most successful race-car drivers, is born. Suzuki began his winning career in the Japanese Kart Championship, and eventually moved on to Formula 1 racing.

SANDWICHES ARE BETTER THAN EVER

The sandwich has come a long way from the 18th century when the famed gambler John Montagu, Fourth Earl of Sandwich, England, in order not to interrupt his game, asked that his meat be brought to him between two slices of bread. And the sandwich was born. At least, so the story goes — I wasn't there.

Breads have changed. For the better. Fillings are simple or sophisticated. Form has changed — from the dainty tea sandwiches and panini, those small ones that appease the Italian hunger between lunch and supper, all the way up to the 6-foot hero crammed with meats, cheeses and condiments, so popular when the gang gathers. And it's not your grandma's butter and/or mustard spread, either. All sorts of sauces and dressing enhance the filling.

Back to form: Some sandwiches now are "wraps" using tortillas or pita pockets. The following Chicken Caesar is enfolded in tortillas and uses leftover roasted or grilled chicken, or some picked up at the deli. Consider English muffins as a vehicle for a sandwich meal of Asian Tuna Salad. Both are dressed with flavored mayonnaise.

CAESAR CHICKEN WRAP

- 1/2 cup French's GourMayo Caesar Ranch mayonnaise
- 4 (10-inch) flour tortillas
- 2 cups shredded romaine lettuce
- 1/2 cup chopped red bell pepper
- 2 cups grilled or roasted chicken

Spread 2 tablespoons mayonnaise on each tortilla. Layer with romaine, red pepper and chicken, dividing evenly. Roll up tightly. Cut in half to serve.

TIP: To pack for brown-bagging, cover well with plastic wrap; refrigerate. Carry in an insulated container.

ASIAN TUNA SALAD SANDWICH

- 1 (6-ounce) can solid white tuna in water, drained
- 1 hard-cooked egg, chopped
- 1/2 cup French's GourMayo Wasabi Horseradish Flavored Light Mayonnaise
- 1/2 cup chopped celery
- 2 tablespoons slivered almonds
- 2 tablespoons chopped green onion (scallion)
- 4 English muffins, split and toasted

In bowl, combine tuna, egg, mayonnaise, celery, almonds and onion; mix well. Place in airtight sealed plastic storage container and refrigerate till lunch-time. When ready to serve, spoon mixture onto bottom halves of muffins. Cover with top halves. Makes 4 servings.

TIP: Spread mixture on your own choice of bread or roll.

Blair Redford

Q. When I have a day off from work I sometimes watch "The Young and The Restless," and I noticed that they just hired an actor whose last name is Redford. A co-worker who is a real expert on the show says he's Robert Redford's grandson, but the soap doesn't want that known. Is that true? And if it is, why would they hide something that could give them so much publicity? — Louise R.

A. According to a colleague who covers the soaps, your letter is one of many that reflect the belief that Blair Redford (who plays Scott Grainger on the show) is Robert Redford's progeny. The fact is, he is not. He just happens to share one of the most famous last names in show business.

Q. I read that Jennifer Aniston actually confronted Angelina Jolie about taking Brad Pitt away from her despite all the denials from Pitt. Can you comment on this? — Laureen C.

A. No one close to either woman will admit that such a confrontation took place.

Q. Whatever happened to Ian Ziering, who used to be on "Beverly Hills 90210" and other shows? It seems to me I haven't seen much of him (in recent years). — Kerry H.

A. Ah yes, but you've probably been hearing a lot from him. Ian Ziering has been doing a lot of voice projects, including "Mighty Ducks" (both the TV series and the movie), the "Spider-Man" series, "Godzilla: The Series" and a slew of other projects. However, you will be able to see him as well as hear him in a new film, "Domino," based on the life of Domino Harvey, the daughter of the late actor, Laurence Harvey, who gave up her career as a top Ford model to become a bounty hunter. (As this is written, "Domino" is expected to be released in October.)

Q. I used to watch a program called "Wolf Lake," which went off the air without any notice. What happened to it? Do you have any information as to why it went off and if the series is being shown on one of the cable channels? Is there a tape or DVD (of the show)? — Eileen S.

A. Most TV critics say "Wolf Lake" debuted at the wrong time, Sept. 19, 2001, when the events of 9/11 were still searingly vivid in the minds of TV viewers and news shows assumed a greater than usual audience. In any event, CBS yanked it just a few weeks later without promoting it sufficiently to build a viewership. The show also suffered from lack of promotion when CBS' sister station, UPN, aired the already produced but unaired episodes, and they failed to get the ratings that would have led to a second season.

At this time, it's not known if the episodes that already aired will be picked up by cable, as "Firefly" was by the Sci Fi Network recently. I am not aware of any commercially produced DVD or tape of "Wolf Lake."

CRITIC'S CORNER
By D.N.A Smith

"The Dukes of Hazzard"

Running time: 103 minutes
MPAA rating: PG-13

Whenever Hollywood pounds out yet another movie based on an old TV show, you know there's a 90-percent chance it's gonna stink worse than an angry skunk at a dog show.

So how badly does "The Dukes of Hazzard" smell? OK, maybe not so bad that you need to go home and bathe in tomato juice, but it's pretty smelly.

There really isn't much to this movie, which is no surprise when you consider the source material. The television show it's based on was nothing but mediocre "Hee-Haw" humor, car chases and Catherine Bach's leathery skin crammed into a pair of Levi cut-offs.

The movie isn't much different. No real big laughs. The cast is either pretty forgettable — except for Jessica Simpson's sashaying around in that pink string bikini — or in the case of Willie Nelson, Burt Reynolds and Lynda Carter, underused.

The General Lee steals the show.

The real stars of "Dukes" are The General Lee (the orange 1969 Dodge Charger) and the stunt drivers. The car stunts in this movie are amazing to watch. The driving is spectacular. It was refreshing to see actual stunts on film again, rather than the CGI crud we've had to settle for this past decade.

If it wasn't for the high quality of the chase scenes and car stunts, I don't think I would be giving "The Dukes of Hazzard" a passing grade. However, I think it's enough to warrant seeing on the big screen — either as a matinee or at your local dollar theater.

Evenly arrange 9 graham crackers in a 9-by-9-inch cake pan. In a large saucepan, combine dry pudding mix, dry milk powder and water. Cook over medium heat until mixture thickens and starts to boil, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Add cream cheese and vanilla extract. Mix well using a wire whisk until well-blended. Fold in banana slices. Spread mixture evenly over cracker crust. Refrigerate for at least 1 hour. Spread fat-free whipped topping over set filling. Crush remaining 3 graham crackers. Westgate Fully Financed To Proceed With Plans that Were Originally Laid Out for the Promotion of the District

Announcement was made two days ago that the original plans proposed for the promotion of Westgate were fully financed by capital from Minnesota.

Westgate is, therefore, the only suburban track in the neighborhood of Sacramento fully financed to proceed with the promotion plans originally detailed by McAnulty Brothers and their associates.

These finances have been advanced by capitalists of Minnesota who have examined the district and noted the possibilities that lay within the power of the promoters.

Consequent to the above announcement, another announcement was made yesterday that T. D. McAnulty was about to leave for San Francisco with the plans of thirty-five homes that are to be started within the next few weeks. As a matter of fact, four of these homes were started this week and as soon as workmen can get to the others a start will be made also.

These homes and lots will average in price between $5000 and $7000 and since some of them have already been sold it is estimated that the balance will find ready sale in a short time.

McAnulty Brothers are in a position now to advance very liberal inducements to home owners who seek investments. The advantages of a home in Westgate are many. The tract is located nearer to the post office in Sacramento than the old city limits on Thirty-first street. Splendid roads lead from the M street bridge to the district and the purchase of a home in the tract means the laying of sidewalks, gas, water, electricity and improved streets.

In the industrial section of Westgate sites have already been purchased for factories that promise steady employment to at least 100 men. Other factories that are in contemplation will give employment in the near future to at least 500 men.

Many plans that are in contemplation and cannot be published at the present time might be mentioned except that publicity is not desirable in matters of this kind.

During the past week G. M. Jones, secretary of the bondholders committee of the West Sacramento Company, and J. Peltier, one of the bondholders committee, spent some time in Westgate. During their stay here they made arrangements for installing a large pump that will be used on the well that was lately dug in the district. A pump capable of throwing 800 gallons of water a minute has been ordered and as soon as it arrives it will be installed at the well excavated to a depth of 800 feet.

Water mains leading from this water plant to every home in the district are about to be laid.

Electric power and light lines are being extended by the Pacific Gas & Electric Company so that every home may have a supply.

A main supply pipe for gas from the manufacturing plant in Sacramento is about to be extended to the district from the highway leading from headquarters to the M street bridge.

These modern conveniences will go to make Westgate one of the most modern suburban tracts within many miles of a radius of Sacramento.

Fire hydrants are also to be installed as a fire protection in every block of the district.

On the return of Mr. T. D. McAnulty from San Francisco active work on construction will be started in the district.

NAMES OF WORLD WAR HEROES ARE LEFT OFF TABLETS

On several occasions the Independent has had occasion to complain about slurs visited by the Woodland daily papers and some of the people resident in Woodland on the people of the first supervisor district of Yolo County.

On every occasion the Woodland Mail has taken advantage of every opportunity to cast odium on this section of Yolo County.

No matter where a crime happens in the first district that crime has been blamed to the people of Washington, or, as the Mail puts it, "Broderick."

Now Supervisor Buckingham berates the Mail for this evil inclination and in an interview published in the Mail a few days ago he tells the people of Woodland that never is the opportunity missed to cast a slur on this section of Yolo County.

In addition he draws particular attention to the fact that when the names of Yolo County heroes were unveiled in tablets at the Flyers Club last Monday, one of the men who gave up his life in action was left off those tablets.

Charles D. Mains of Washington gave up his life blood in France and when the tablets were unveiled the other day his name and that of another young man from Knights Landing were missing.

In the interview published by the Mail and given by Supervisor Buckingham the following is quoted:

"Mains was killed in action where he went to fight for his country, Yolo County, and its residents. I do not understand why Woodland has not named that boy on the list with the others who gave their lives in war."

That Broderick is suffering under the unfavorable publicity which has been drawn to it from the series of unfortunate events which have transpired there, was brought out in Buckingham's statements.

"Everything along the river that occurs here," he stated, "is said to occur in Broderick even though it be miles up or down the river.

"We are a growing community, a thriving one, and we have a majority of peace loving and law abiding citizens in our midst. The publicity which Broderick has been given gives it a 'black eye' and I think that people should be cognizant of the conditions here that it is growing, improving, and stands in a good way to outgrow Woodland as a community when it strikes its stride."

Before the tablets were unveiled at the Flyers Club in Woodland the fact was mentioned several times in the press that Mains' name had been omitted. Yet nothing was done until Supervisor Buckingham mentioned the matter to the Woodland papers and brought them to time for their delinquency.

Now it appears that the Flyers Club as a body is ready to rectify the damage already done, and is ready to apologize for tht insult offered.

In a letter received by Buckingham, this apology is made. It reads as follows:

June 9, 1925.

Mr. H. B. Buckingham,
Broderick (Washington P. O.), Calif.
Dear Mr. Buckingham:

The "Mail of Woodland" ran an article on the front page of this morning's issue in regard to the name of Charles D. Mains being left off of the memorial tablets erected on the gates at the Yolo Fliers Club.

Unfortunately, the reporter who handled the "story" failed to confirm same by calling any of the officers of the club. A week or two before the tablets were put in place it was called to our attention that Comrade Mains' name was not on the list, but Mr. Pugh, who carved the tablets had no one to give him the correct spelling of the name and the correct initial. As time was short, he left a space on the tablet on the south gate for the name, so that as soon as the correct name could be verified, the same would be added.

Mr. Pratt, the president of the club, made the arrangements for the names, securing his list of names and data through various officers in the court house. There being no one directly charged with the duty of keeping a correct list, the possibility of error was there. We regret the temporary

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS

The Sacramento River registered seven feet seven inches, United States gauge at the Southern Pacific bridge yesterday. This is a fall of more than a foot during the past week, and from now on the river will gradually recede to about five feet and even less.

Last Tuesday Deputy Sheriff Victor M. Brown found an abandoned Ford automobile on the highway near Westgate. The car had been stolen from Sacramento the day before and when found was practically stripped of every removable part. The Sacramento police found the owner and returned the automobile.

Canvassers in the employ of the Pacific Gas & Electric Company have been signing up all householders in Westgate who want to secure a supply of summer fuel for household purposes. So far they have met with no refusals, but on the contrary are being urged every day to continue their efforts so that a main supply pipe may be installed in the district.

Mabrey MacMahon, a former associate of McAnulty Brothers in Venetia, Marin County, has been a visitor in Westgate during the past few days. He is deeply impressed with the possibilities of the suburban tract that is now being put on the market by the Westgate Realty Company. MacMahon was formerly president of the state realty association. He has many friends among the fraternity in Sacramento and spent several days visiting them.

George Haas will leave tonight to visit his mother in Los Angeles. He expects to bring her to Westgate and make a permanent home in this section of the state.

H. B. Marks has established his grocery business on the main highway just west of West Sacramento headquarters. For the time being the building is but a small one, but he has ample room for expansion, having purchased a lot measuring 50x150 feet. The building is not exactly finished at the present time but nevertheless Mr. Marks has opened for business. Temporarily he has a small but varied stock of goods, but is willing to add as the demand increases. Mr. Marks was in business in Sacramento in the grocery line during several years and is thoroughly acquainted with the trade.

Mrs. E. Reinersman is gradually improving after a severe spell of sickness which lasted several months. For a time her relatives and friends despaired of her recovery because gangrene had set in one of her toes. Gradually this has disappeared and she is now able to help herself to a great extent.

In the Sacramento court Wednesday, Peter Masloff was fined $500 on a charge of distilling at his home on the Lower Stockton Road in Sacramento. Peter was formerly a resident of Riverbank but decided to remove to a more sparsely settled district with the idea that stool pigeons would not get him so soon.

Rube Lee lately invested in a monster seven passenger automobile which he is now sporting around Riverbank and Washington. Rube is an expert driver, but sometimes becomes reckless, especially when he gets behind the steering wheel of a high powered car. He has sent notices to all his friends to keep out of his way when they find him in the mood to travel.

The West Side Auto Camp declares that in its history it has never done a business such as is being done at the present time. Four gasoline pumps are now ready to serve customers and a fifth is about to be installed. The station is kept open all night and the owners declare that this innovation is practically a necessity because travel at night is almost as heavy as it is during the day.

F. L. Maule has gone to Angels Camp for a few days. He reports a continued increase in his business in the grocery line in the West Sacramento Auto Camp.

Prohibition is doing wonders for the working man, according to Judge Barry. In his court last Tuesday R. McClary and J. Watson appeared for trial on a charge of disturbing the peace when they were taken up by Constable Huberty and Marshal Young of Davis. It seems the two men got on a load of jackass and forgetting their good manners they hailed many motorists on the highway about three miles east of Davis and near the Yolo causeway. Some travelers made complaint to the Davis constable and marshal, who arrested both men and brought them before Judge Barry. They were fined $20 each, which they paid.

C. C. Berry, operating camp grounds west of Washington on the state highway, was arrested last Wednesday by Traffic Cop H. R. Jacobs on the charge of "cutting in." Berry made claim that he was forced to do so by another autoist proceeding in the opposite direction. Judge Barry fined him $5.00 which was paid immediately.

A Washington youth, well known to the officials of the community, seems to take great pleasure in riding around every night at late and unusual hours with the muffler of his motorcycle wide open. The officers claim that the youngster seems to do this on purpose to disturb the hard workers who have already retired for the night. They are laying for him with the idea that he will either break his own neck or they will get him for disturbing the peace.

Sheriff J. W. Monroe spent some time Thursday morning around Washington and was greatly pleased with the peaceful condition of affairs in the town as well as the splendid moral conditions that prevail at the present time.

Seth Barry is making considerable renovations at his home at 412 Fourth street. A large front porch is being added to the building and the interior is being repainted and repapered. The work is being done by himself and his brother, Jerome, Jr. A supply of gas for cooking is also being installed.

Yesterday afternoon the pupils of the Washington public schools held their closing picnic in the shade of the great elms on the school grounds. Delicacies had been provided for the occasion in the shape of ice cream, cakes and candies. A very enjoyable time was spent by the children during the entire afternoon.

Pupils of the Bryte school held their closing picnic yesterday afternoon at McKinley Park. For the picnic a great supply of lunch and ice cream had been secured and the children returned tired out after indulging in many games and pastimes.

The Hoffman saloon was raided last Sunday night about 11 p. m. and the two owners were arrested by Enforcement Officer Camplong. Both owners are out on bail of $1,000, which was supplied by friends. A small quantity of wine was found on the premises.

Liquid tar melted by the heat of yesterday afternoon was quietly dripping from the roof of the awning in front of the Hauser Building next to the post office. It was covering the sidewalk and being swayed by a north wind was dangling in long strings to catch on the walls of the building and then drop on the sidewalk. This coat of tar was lately put on by Fred Hauser. Some person with a valuable suit of clothes will get their clothing ruined unless something is done to stop the leak and will have a good case for damage against Hauser. Besides, if anyone should step on the tar on the concrete sidewalk they may be badly injured by a heavy fall. Hauser has promised to remedy the defect.

Mrs. A. M. Cameron, who was injured quite seriously in an automobile smashup in Los Angeles during the Shriners convention, is reported to be getting along nicely under the care of Dr. Mealand of Sacramento, who is a member of the touring party. The report current a few days ago that Mrs. Cameron was forced to go to a hospital in Los Angeles is incorrect.

Mrs. I. K. Manchester and Miss Helen Dassonville spent a few days of the past week in San Francisco on a short vacation. They returned here Wednesday evening.

Charles and Arthur Hicks returned to Vallejo after a week-end visit here.

Mrs. H. M. Eugene spent Tuesday in San Francisco on business.

Mrs. A. A. Dassonville and daughter, Helen, left Tuesday for Oakland to spend a few days.

Mrs. Della Knight of Oakland is spending a short while here as the guest of her sister, Mrs. Celia Hart.

Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Rollins and daughter and Mrs. Effie Anderson have returned from a short visit in Lincoln.

ANOTHER VICTIM OF PROHIBITION GOES TO JAIL FOR SIXTY DAYS

Ida Hall, another victim of prohibition, appeared in Judge Barry's court last Tuesday forenoon on a charge of vagrancy to be sentenced to the county jail in Woodland for sixty days.

Ida was surely a wreck from booze and dope and dope and booze. In the history of mankind it is scarcely conceivable that any human being, especially a woman, could sink so low as Ida seemed to sink.

It was impossible for her to answer a question or understand one. She was truly a victim of over-indulgence and the pity of it is that she over-indulged in the most poisonous concoctions that ever depreciated human beings since the dawn of creation.

With eyes closed, with lips swollen and split, with blood dripping from her tongue and with every inch of her arms dotted with a hypodermic needle, Ida took her sentence without knowing what it meant.

Forgetful of herself, forgetful of the world, forgetful of everything but the stimulant she craved, she listened to her sentence not knowing what it meant.

And when sentenced she was moved like so much baggage into an automobile to be taken to jail.

Losing herself in the slums of some large city she took to drinking jackass. Later she drank canned heat and still later she craved morphine.

Sixty days or 600 days was all the same to Ida and yet underneath the depraved appearance which she bore there was that mark of refinement that evidently indicated that she came from a good family where she was once the idol of a proud father and a fond mother.

Down the hill they go with prohibition. Possibly she might have used whiskey to excess were it to be procured but using the concoctions that she is forced to use she has lost all sense of womanhood, of virtue, of cleanliness, of honesty, of chastity. She was taken up south of the M street bridge near the rice mills.

Attended W. Sac vigil

Last October I was working on a Get Out the Vote event with Sacramento For Democracy (S.F.D.) and Cindy Sheehan was one of the guest speakers. The pain she conveyed to us through her story had us all moved to tears.

In February I went to Steve and Virginia Pearcy's home to support their right to hang a soldier display on the front of their house in protest of the war in Iraq. And who was there standing in the rain with all of us? Cindy Sheehan, with a huge picture of her son, Casey.

I support what Cindy is doing in Crawford, Texas. To me she has become a hero. She has brought me hope, even though becoming a hero was not her purpose in any of this. She just wanted to know for what noble purpose did her son die. But by doing so she has paved the way for many other parents to ask what is the noble purpose ours sons and daughters are dying for?

I went to the vigil for Cindy in West Sacramento even though there was a huge vigil in downtown Sacramento with hundreds of people because I have lived and worked in West Sacramento since 1982 before recently moving. There were about 16 of us at the West Sacramento vigil. We talked of our feelings about the Iraq war, lit candles, and had a few minutes of silence for Casey.

Thank you Linda Copeland for bringing us all together in your lovely home.

Properly discard butts

Cigarette butts are polluting the waters we swim and boat in. An outrageous statistic shows that 4,125 tons of cigarettes are discarded annually in California, and some of them are discarded through car windows. Cigarette butts, as with other litter, can eventually enter the highway storm drains and, ultimately, our waterways such as lakes and the ocean. Marine animals can ingest them mistaking them for food. Also, cigarette butts can release toxic chemicals into the water. No one wants to swim in toxic water. We want to remind readers that as the rain season nears, rain will begin to flush all the litter - and cigarette butts -- thrown on the ground into our streams, rivers and the ocean.

The Caltrans "Don't Trash California" Storm Water Public Education Campaign has been developed in part to reach out to Californians about the effects trash has as the key source of pollution along California's highways and freeways. And the number one litter item along our roadways are cigarette butts!

In addition, most storm drain water flows into our waterways untreated, which means that all those toxic chemicals released by cigarettes can pollute groundwater, flow into canals and streams, and into recreational areas such as lakes, rivers and the ocean.
